Doctor J. G. Parrish's Handsel filly, Miss Layman, opened up a gap of five lengths on her field in the first three furlongs, but she died away to nothing in the last eighth. Crawford inid in second place with Fay Templeton to the sixteenth pole, then brought the filly through in the center of the track, and outfinished Troxler on Tommy O'Hara. It was strictly a twohorse race, Miss Layman being beaten off eight lengths for the place. Tom Stevens's Liddon was outrun every foot of the route. Gus Lanka was made the favorite in the

It was Boomerack's first start this year, but he had been working well, and the rail birds bet on him like it was all over. Johnny Hennessy broke in front with Boomerack and made every bost a winning one, landing his mount first by four lengths, while Dick Ripley best Gus Lanka two lengths for the place.

EXCITING FINISH.

The most exciting finish of the day came in the second race, when Joe Martin, antless Clara and Budweiser ran heads

Budweiser made all the running, but died

Budweiser made all the running, but died away in the last hundred yards. Joe Martin was the contending horse all the way. He was much the best, but suffered from werk handling.

Maverick was so much the best in the third race that, after getting practically left at the post, he took after his field, overhauling the bunch in the first quarter, and won eased up by five lengths. Chris Schawacker's Bandillo defeated Ora Mc-Kinney for the place by a length.

Doctor J. G. Parrieh's Imboden ran a game race in the fifth race. Jim-a-long broke flying and carried his field into the stretch at a terrific gait. Imboden and William Wright chased the pacemaker with great gameness, but William Wright was short and tired in the last sixteenth. Imboden hung on, catching Jim-a-long in time to beat him by a half length.

Jockey Eddie Dombitick returned from St. Louis this morning and signalized his debut in the saddle at Clinton Park by piloting Dawson to victory in the sixth race. Dawson got off poorly and was forced to run around the entire field. He got up in time to beat Bermuda by a half length.

English Grand National Set for Next Friday at Liverpool. One of the most severe tests on the modern turf for the steeplechasers is the Liverpool Grand National course, on which the big British stake event "over the sticks" will be run next Friday, and in which Ambush II, owned by King Edward, is the favorite.

This course is four miles and 856 yards in circuit, and includes thirty jumps, far higher than those of the ordinary track. Sixteen jumps are taken by the racers in the first circuit and fourteen on the sec ond. Formerly a portion of the course lay over a plowed field, but this was thought to add an unnecessary severe touch and has been omitted.

MCALEER WAS BEST FIELDER. Stanley Robison of the Cardinals Says "Jimmy" Was the Greatest of Them All.

Stanley Rollson last night, "I think Jimmy' McAleer, the Browns's present manager, was the greatest outfielder the game ever saw, "When he was a member of our Spiders' McAleer was a sure enough wonder. He could cover as much ground as two ordinary fielders, and catches that would be either impossible, or at least very difficult for other men would be easy for Jimmy.

"McAleer had a way of going after a ball that was all his own, and he hiss not had an equal since he quit the game. As soon as the ball hit the bat McAleer seemed to divine where it was going to land. If it was a long fly over his head McAleer would turn his back full on the ball, dart out toward the fence like a deer, whirl around, and be under the ball in time to have it safey judged.

"I have had some good fielders under me in my baseball career and seen others, but McAleer was easily the best. He was fast and it was almost impossible to send a ball in the air in his direction and make a base off it.

"I will never forget the injury that practically put 'Jimmy' out of the game,' continued Mr. Roblson, "We were playing in Brooklyn at the time. The Brooklyn management had been fixing the fences and had left some post holes unfilled where the old fence formerly stood. One of the Brooklyn batters clouted the ball along toward the fifth liming, Other fielders would have been content to watch the ball drop. Not so with the peeriess Jimmy. As soon as the ball was hit McAleer swung about and was after it at full flight. Just as he was getting in front of the ball to make a cauch he turned, clutched at the air and fell heavily on his face. He rolled about the sod in agony. "No one knew what caused Jimmy to fall. Burkett and other players went to his assistance. In the course of his chase for the ball make.

injury he might have been in the game yet.

"He was certainly the best fielder the world ever saw, and had he been able to hit he would have been the most valuable man the game has ever known, as he was fast on his feet and a great base runner, besides being a great fielder." Manager Hanlon of the Brooklyns has at last admitted that he has lost Pitcher Schmidt. The little fellow, together with Doctor Newton, Tim Flood, Phil Nadeau and Jay Hugles, will remain on the coast this season.

"Keep your eye on Huelsman, that giant that McAleer has signed for the Browns," was the advice that Pitcher Jack Hickey gave out to a bunch of Cleveland players yesterday. "That fellow is the greatest batter I have ever pitched against. There is no kind of a ball that he does not like. I have tried him on all kinds of curves and he hits them all out allke." "Give him a slush ball," said Joss. "If you do he will hit it a mile," retorted the Seattle man.

Tom Lynch has about decided that he will call balls and strikes for the National League again this season. They don't make them any better than Tom.

BENSON HAS PROMISING TALENT. Cuests Entered at Broadway Academy Includes Well-Known Players. Hallman defeated Hoffman in the Clas B tournament game at the Grand last night by a score of 25 to 22.

Frank Benson has finally made arrange ments for the academy games and has secured a list of players that appear to be the most evenly matched yet appearing at the Broadway.

the Broadway.

The best known player in the group, perhaps, is Tommie Houston. Houston was a member of the last academy and more than held his own with such cracks as Clearwater and Eby. He was apparently a better performer than either Stofft or Weston, the other players in the academy.

James Ryan of Boston, a newcomer, is preceded by a reputation nearly as great as that of the peerless De Oro. In what he has shown to the patrons of the Broadway, Ryan is maintaining his reputation.

Broadway. Ryan is maintaining his reputation.

He is a clean, steady player, with an even stroke and well-balanced head. He does not devote his time to making spectacular shots that bring applause from the audience but he manages to pocket the fifteen balls with regularity.

Claude White and Henry Jones are the heart known of the local rlayers in the readency. White while a very slow player, is a sure one. Ely is more after the pattern of De Oro and his work presages a bright future for the "red one."

Henry Jones and Maurice Balzheiser complete the list of players, but Benson intends to have all the best pool experts in the United States compete in the academy before the end of the season.

Ely's victory over Gilmore was in the nature of a surprise. In the last tournament at the Broadway Gilmore displayed undoubted class, and on that performance many of the pool fans picked him to win the present tournament.

Ely won the bank and made 5 points on his first shot. Gilmore followed with 10 points. Until the eleventh frame was reached Gilmore was in the lead, when Ely, by some clever playing, forged to the front.

In the thirteenth frame Ely made 8, and, with only 1 point to go, had little trouble in winning in the fourteenth inning. Gilmore relied on the open game, making most of his points from difficult positions. Ely played the safety game largely and showed superior generalship.

This afternoon Maurice Balnieiser and Prank Dumont are scheduled to play, while to-night's game will be between Claude White and Walter Alcoke.
